TSX ENDS LOWER AFTER FED DECISION

Canadian stocks fell to a two-month low on Wednesday as the nation's largest lenders tumbled to offset a rebound in gold prices after the U.S. Federal Reserve indicated that the pace of interest-rate increases will be gradual.

Toronto-Dominion Bank dropped 0.8 per cent to pace declines among financial services firms. Alacer Gold Corp. rallied 8.4 per cent as gold climbed. Bombardier Inc. extended its two-day slide to 8 per cent as the aircraft maker has been shut out of the Paris Air Show so far.

The Standard & Poor's/TSX Composite Index fell 20.07 points, or 0.1 per cent, to 14,732.98 in Toronto. The gauge has advanced 0.7 per cent this year, among the worst-performers in developed markets in the world.

Seven of 10 industries in the S&P/TSX advanced on trading volume 5.7 per cent lower than the 30-day average. Royal Bank of Canada, the nation's largest lender, slipped 0.6 per cent as financial services firms decreased 0.5 per cent as a group, the most in the S&P/TSX.

Barrick Gold Corp. climbed 2.6 per cent, the most in a month, and Unique, Charming Character Home!

2127 Pandosy Street - $409,000

Get ready for love at first sight...This charming character home is unique, stylish and comfortable. Why live in a generic box when you can relax and enjoy the warmth of this adorable architectural gem or sit on your deck and while away a few hours admiring your over-sized yard. The intimacy and of the design is made to feel more appealing by hardwood floors and high ceilings. If you are looking for a place to renew your spirit or even just a home that you can express who you are in... this address makes a lot more sense than a townhouse priced higher. This is also a great long term investment, the home was designed to be easily moved forward to allow for a carriage house and the lot is zoned RU6! Take a look, and see if you fall in love? U.S. stocks ended slightly higher following a choppy session Wednesday after the Federal Reserve said the U.S. economy is likely strong enough to withstand an interest rate hike later this year.

Even if a majority of Fed officials continue to see higher rates by the end of 2015, they expect rates to rise slightly less by the end of 2016 and 2017 than they did in their March forecasts.

That view on rates saw high-yielding stocks gain, with the S&P 500 utilities sector up 0.9 percent after hitting on Tuesday its lowest since late September.

Stocks with higher dividend yields attract investors when there is an expectation that Treasury yields will fall, or in this case, remain relatively low.

"The Fed is talking about the labour market tightening somewhat, which seems to be a hint that it is a step closer to raising rates. At the same

Executive Director

Western Trade Training Institute (WTTI) is seeking an Executive Director to lead the organization to further business growth. The Executive Director reports to the Board of Directors and has primary responsibility for all aspects of the private vocational training institute. Key priorities include business growth and expansion of industry training and the current delivery of the Crane & Hoist Apprenticeship program for Saskatchewan Apprenticeship and Trades Certification Commission (SATCC).

The Executive Director is responsible for leading the institute by establishing and maintaining effective and harmonious working relationships with instructional staff, personnel within other industries and organizations, and other constituent training groups. This position will ensure operational deliverables are met and exceeded, resource allocations are managed, and solid budgetary decisions are made based on the business requirements.

The successful candidate will possess a Journeyman certificate in an industrial related trade or equivalent combination of trades industrial and safety training experience. Candidate should have business management experience in relevant and similar environment. Candidate must demonstrate knowledge and experience in the Trades Industry, Apprenticeship program for Saskatchewan Apprenticeship and Trades Certification Commission (SATCC), and Occupational Health & Safety Regulations.

Western Trade Training Institute delivers Saskatchewan Apprenticeship and Trades Certification Commission (SATCC) Level Crane Operation and related sub trade training to business and industry across the province, Alberta and Manitoba. Parkland College owns 100% shares of Western Trade Training Institute.

time, it seems like there was a notching down of the magnitude of rate hike expectations," said Nick Kalivas, senior equity product strategist at Invesco PowerShares in Downers Grove, Ill.

"Those two things are what is causing stocks to go back and forth."

Major indexes were volatile following the Fed statement. Stocks initially added to losses, then hit session highs as Fed Chair Janet Yellen spoke to the media in a follow-up to the statement. They lost more than half the day's gains at the close.

The S&P 500 has hovered near the 2,100 level for more than a month as sentiment shifts between hopes for a stronger economy and fears of the effect of rising rates coupled with high valuations.

At the closing bell on Wednesday, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 31.26 points, or 0.17 per cent, to 17,935.74, the S&P 500 gained 4.15 points, or 0.2 per cent, to 2,100.44 and the Nasdaq Composite added 9.33 points, or 0.18 per cent, to 5,064.88.

At its session high, the S&P had been up 0.5 percent.

Adding to support for equities, investors have seen the proximity of rising rates as a trigger for more M&A activity, with mergers and acquisitions already at record levels.

Away from the Fed, FedEx fell 3 per cent to $176.73 after the package delivery firm reported a quarterly net loss.

Oracle shares fell nearly 7 per cent in after-hours trading after the enterprise software and computer hardware company missed revenue expectations.

Brent August crude rose 17 cents to settle at $63.87, having swung from $62.60 to $65.47 and ending back below its 50-day moving average of $64.16.

THE DAY A MONTREAL OIL-TANKER EXPLOSION KILLED DOZENS

It's the anniversary of a major oil-tanker explosion that killed dozens of Quebecers. This one happened 83 years ago, long before the Lac-Mégantic train disaster.

The Cymbeline, an oil tanker at the Canadian Vickers Co. dry dock in Montreal's east end, exploded around 4 a.m. on June 17, 1932.

Thirty people died, including

Montreal's fire chief and three firefighters, in one of the worst workplace tragedies in the city's history.

The explosion is thought to have been sparked by a rivet puncturing an oil tank on the ship. The dead included workers who were repairing the ship's deck and hull. Dozens of others suffered burns and other injuries

After the first explosion, Montreal fire chief Raoul Gauthier boarded the ship to ensure no traces of oil remained.

He was killed when a second explosion rocked the ship, sending people flying into the St. Lawrence River and showering the area in burning oil.

Gauthier was a friend of Brother André, the founder of St-Joseph's Oratory who was declared a saint in 2010. He visited the site after the disaster, saying a prayer and throwing medals into the water. According to legend, it was "precisely where (Brother André)

CHIPPEWAS OF
THE THAMES FIRST
NATION'S COURT
CHALLENGE OF
ENBRIDGE LINE 9 PIPELINE

We stand in solidarity with Chippewas of the Thames First Nation in their legal challenge against Enbridge's Line 9 pipeline project.

Last April, Chippewas of the Thames First Nation (COTTFN) filed with the Federal Court of Appeal to challenge the National Energy Board (NEB) approval of Line 9, saying that the federal Crown provided no consultation with COTTFN on the project, as is their right. Line 9 crosses through Chippewas of the Thames' traditional and treaty territory, including the Thames River which provides a source of drinking water to the First Nation.

Line 9 crosses every major tributary that flows into Lake Ontario. A spill from Line 9 could threaten the drinking water of over 10 million people and devastate rivers with bitumen that cannot be cleaned up.

Despite the COTTFN court challenge and requests from several municipalities to conduct an environmental assessment, the NEB approved Enbridge's request to reverse the flow of the line, increase its capacity, and use it to transport diluted bitumen and fracked oil. Bitumen has proved to be detrimental to public health and the environment as evidenced by the Michigan Kalamazoo River spill in 2010 and numerous other spills across North America. The serious toll of fracking on health and the environment is also increasingly coming to light as more fracked oil and contaminated wastewater spill.

Line 9 would also contribute to the expansion of the tar sands by providing another export route. The tar sands emit massive amounts of CO2 and are creating a toxic sacrifice zone in much of Alberta. Several communities near the tar sands, including Fort Chipewyan, have reported cancer clusters and massive ecological changes threatening wildlife populations and traditional food systems.

The NEB's approval of Line 9 is a violation of COTTFN's treaty rights, which are affirmed in Section 35 of the Canadian Constitution. The Line 9 approval is also a direct violation of internationally recognized Indigenous rights, which include the right of free, prior, and informed consent, as stated in the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples.

For these reasons, we support Chippewas of the Thames First Nation in their legal challenge to Line 9 and urge the court to hold the NEB accountable to its treaty responsibilities as a body of the Canadian government.

In January, Fox Creek recorded two earthquakes with magnitudes of 3.8 and 4.4. The Alberta Energy Regulator said the Jan. 22 quake was likely caused by hydraulic fracking. Gu said the magnitudes of earthquakes seem to be getting larger. If the latest quakes are found to be caused by fracking, Gu said the industry may have to take more precautions. Alberta Geological Survey now requires a temporary shutdown of operations after events of magnitude 4.0 or greater. If fracking is found to be responsible, it could affect resource extraction around Fox Creek, which worries workers. Dolton lampen works for a company that processes the chemicals used for fracking. He said everyone was talking about Saturday's earthquake. "Lots of people like to make jokes, saying it wasn't that big of a deal," he said. "They don't want it to be a big deal. Fracking is generally a huge part around town, a lot of fracking going on." The Alberta Energy Regulator has launched an investigation into the cause of Saturday's earthquake.

FRACKING INVESTIGATED AS POSSIBLE CAUSE OF FOX CREEK EARTHQUAKE

A geophysicist is looking at whether hydraulic fracking caused a 4.4-magnitude earthquake recorded on Saturday near Fox Creek, Alta. "We have to take time to analyze the records," said Jeff Gu, an associate professor at the University of Alberta. "But from earlier events in the same area ... we found a strong correlation between the timing of these events, early events from late 2003, with three injection wells west of the town of Fox Creek." "These earlier earthquakes related to Fox Creek were most likely, with a 99 per cent possibility, related to fracking."
